FOTO REVIEW #13

Dear Friends and Reader!

Our 13th issue of our photo review is featuring a young talented photographer from Tel Aviv.

All his captures are unique visual witnesses and part of his ongoing photographic project, named, "Tel Aviv, everyday life"

His words, accompany his visual work, emphasize the unique atmosphere and let us immerse into the vivid scene on Tel Aviv's streets.

True the motto, the weight of the transience is the instant, all his images and captures are created analogue on film.

Please join us on this captivating getaway.

DAVID GOLDSTEIN

is a franco-israeli photographer. All the featured photos are part of his ongoing project, called „Tel Aviv, everyday life“ Where he tries to capture his impression of the daily life in the amazing city of Tel Aviv.

All shown photos had been taken with an analog camera on film.

David Goldstein about his motivation:

„Through photography I do my best to answer a simple question : how to find your place in this world? Probably because i did not find the answer yet.

Therefore, urban life and human's place in the cities are my main issues. I take inspirations from great photographers like Joel Meyerowitz or Sergio Larrain for example, but also from film makers where I find a kind of poetry like Wong Kar Wai or Xavier Dolan.“

At Work: When the temperature is hot, it's good to take a break under the shadow of a tree...

Back to The beach: I love the life and different stories you can find at the beach

Into my thoughts: Prisoner of the rain...

Life at the beach: Different people, different lives, within the same frame

Love is in the air: love, simply love

Love is in the air: love, simply love

Octopus: I usually like to play with shadows. Here I have the feeling the woman will soon be caught by a giant octopus

Save your money: always better served by yourself i guess...

Shoes up: when I see this shoes up in the air, I am always wondering who threw them away...

Take my hand: I like the connection the child is trying to make there, like if he said „come with me!“

The lady in the sky: just life in a street

The look: sometimes it is not possible to be invisible...

The streets: so many things happen in the streets, this is the magic of the city

Window dancers: like a choreography...

Elegance: who wants to sit near this elegant man?
